A Message from the Secretary

The Department of Health's (DOH) Strategic Plan supports our bold vision of Equity and optimal health for all. The role of public health in Washington continues to change and we must change with it. In order to support the future role of public health, DOH must transform our organizational culture; our funding process and system; our data and information technology systems; and incorporate principles of equity, diversity, and inclusion into everything we do to best serve all Washingtonians and meet our agency mission. As a leader in the public health system, DOH will work over the course of this strategic plan to expand our partnerships, realign and expand our resources, and drive toward results that will improve the health of the people of Washington.

This plan lays out our best thinking about transformations that will support our vision and the department's mission. Robust strategies and aggressive work plans will propel the agency forward toward our objectives over the next 12 to 24 months to:

- Turn the agency outward by understanding and incorporating the goals and objectives of our employees, partners, and customers into our actions, systems, and decisions
- Diversify and secure funding and strategically deploy resources for maximum impact
- Make strategic decisions and create working environments that foster the data integration, data sharing, and data analysis necessary to support better health outcomes
- Transform our workplace to be inclusive of employees from marginalized and underrepresented communities
- Integrate the voices of underrepresented communities into all policy, program, and resource decisions
- Ensure equitable access to services, programs, opportunities, and information

The intent of the department is to employ rapid cycle change and develop new strategies as work progresses. In this way we, as a learning organization, become adept at quickly influencing and adapting to the changing environment around us, while holding to our vision of health equity for all. To improve the public's health, we must work with and through others to create an overall culture of health. The transformations outlined in this plan lay the foundations for the department to influence policy, systems, and environments that create an equitable culture of health.

We invite you to join us in this work to optimize the health of everyone in Washington.

Executive Summary

This strategic plan sets forth the principles and work that guide the thinking and conduct of people within the Department of Health. The plan was developed by the Executive, Agency Leadership, and Deputies teams with participation from all parts of the agency. It provides a blueprint that will guide the entire agency, its employees, and our partnerships through foundational transformations that will drive us to modernize, innovate, and increase our relevancy over the next five to ten years. These transformations will support broader public health goals and strengthen the department's ability to improve the health of the people of Washington.

The 2020 plan focuses leadership intention on developing the organization and its people in the following transformational areas:

- Outward Mindset
- Funding
- Data, Information, and Technology Innovations
- Equity, Diversity, and Inclusion

While the plan sets out long-range transformation in these areas, it also focuses on fifteen (15) short-term strategies that will be implemented in the next 12–24 months to move us forward on our transformation journey. As these strategies are completed, new strategies will be developed that continue to advance our transformation journey in each of these areas.

Each transformation has an executive sponsor who provides active, visible sponsorship; resolves conflicts and sets priorities; and serves as a link to agency leadership. The strategies outlined in each transformation have a detailed work plan, leader and cross-functional team who work to implement the actions and projects outlined in the strategy work plan.

Progress will be tracked for both short-term and long-term success factors. As we implement our strategies, we expect to see the following transformations across our agency:

1. Collaborative culture – seeing and doing our work in ways that take others into account; holding ourselves accountable for achieving our goals and objectives in ways that make it easier for DOH employees, our customers, and our partners to achieve theirs.
2. Flexible and sustainable funding – maximizing the flexibility within categorical funding; exploring and using alternative financing models; and leveraging shared goals and resources to bring stability and resources to those communities most in need and historically marginalized.
3. Timely and locally relevant data, metrics, and analytics – collecting data from multiple sources and quickly analyzing these data for real-time public health decision-making. Data is used to understand and measure inequities and address those inequities.
4. Inclusive Partnerships – welcoming, authentic community engagement led by communities in the ways they determine is best for themselves. Using a lens of equity we partner with multiple diverse sectors focusing on collective results, and encourage new directions for problem-solving and potential solutions.

Section 1: About Us

Description

Our programs and services help prevent illness and injury, promote healthy places to live and work, provide information to help people make good health decisions, and ensure our state is prepared for emergencies. To accomplish all of this, we collaborate with many partners every day.

We help ensure a safer and healthier Washington by:

- Working to improve health through disease and injury prevention, immunization, and newborn screening
- Providing health and safety information, education, and training so people can make healthy choices
- Promoting a health and wellness system where we live, learn, work, play, and worship
- Addressing environmental health hazards associated with drinking water, food, air quality, and pesticide exposure
- Protecting individuals and families by licensing healthcare professionals, investigating disease outbreaks, and preparing for emergencies

The Secretary of Health reports directly to the Governor and serves on the Executive Cabinet. One thousand eight hundred fifty-two (1852) employees run the Department of Health using a mix of funds from the state budget, federal agencies, fees, and dedicated accounts.

ORGANIZATIONAL CHART

The department is responsible for a $1.3 billion biennial operating budget and administration of 25 separate financial accounts. Most of the money the agency manages (67%) is invested with our partners in local health jurisdictions and communities for direct service delivery.

The Department of Health was one of the first state health departments to achieve national accreditation by the Public Health Accreditation Board (PHAB) in 2013, and reaccreditation in 2018. PHAB Accreditation has helped the department identify strengths and areas for improvement, strengthened internal and external partnerships, and stimulated greater accountability and transparency.

Agency Vision

Equity and optimal health for all

Agency Mission

The Department of Health works with others to protect and improve the health of all people in Washington State

Agency Values

Good organizations know what they do and how they do it. Great organizations know what they do, how they do it, and why they do it. Our values are:

Human-centered	We see others as people who matter like we do and take into account their needs, challenges, contributions, and objectives.
Equity	We are committed to fairness and justice to ensure access to services, programs, opportunities, and information for all.
Partnership and Collaboration	We seek partnership and collaboration to maximize our collective impact. We cannot achieve our vision alone.
Seven Generations	Inspired by Native American culture, we seek wisdom from those who came before us to ensure our current work protects those who will come after us.
Excellence	We strive to demonstrate best practices, high performance, and compelling value in our work every day.

Key Objectives

We want to:

- Turn the agency outward by understanding and incorporating the goals and objectives of our employees, partners, and customers into our actions, systems, and decisions
- Diversify and secure funding and strategically deploy resources for maximum impact
- Make strategic decisions and create working environments that foster the data integration, data sharing, and data analysis necessary to support better health outcomes
- Transform our workplace to be inclusive of employees from marginalized and underrepresented communities
- Integrate the voices of underrepresented communities into all policy, program, and resource decisions
- Ensure equitable access to services, programs, opportunities, and information

We believe strategic transformations in four key areas will move us toward accomplishment of our key objectives. The four key strategic transformations are:

- Outward Mindset - Turn the agency outward for maximum positive impact on employees, partners, customers, and the agency as a whole
- Funding - Diversify and secure funding and strategically deploy resources for maximum impact
- Data, Information, and Technology Innovations - Make strategic decisions and create work environments that foster the data integration, data sharing, and data analysis necessary to support better health outcomes
- Equity, Diversity, and Inclusion - Transform our workplace to be inclusive of employees from marginalized and underrepresented communities. Integrate the voices of underrepresented communities into all policy, program, and resource decisions. Ensure equitable access to services, programs, opportunities, and information

Future State of the Agency

DOH is focused on ensuring everyone in Washington can achieve their optimal health (also called health equity) by addressing the historical, social, and economic factors that impact our systems and drive our health outcomes. The DOH Transformations create the infrastructure that will help us achieve health equity and further our role as Chief Health Strategist for our state.

Success requires that we further mobilize communities and develop strategic partnerships across many sectors in the state, in concert with our local public health departments, tribes, and the State Board of Health. These partnerships will leverage knowledge, relationships, and resources necessary to influence social and economic factors and achieve health equity.

The transformations in this plan will guide DOH into this future and into new ways of working. As we progress in our transformations, our intent is that the agency will begin to look more and more like our ideal vision listed below:

1. Collaborative culture –

We see and do our work in ways that take others into account. We hold ourselves accountable not only for achieving our goals and objectives but also for doing so in ways that make it easier for DOH employees, our customers, and our partners to achieve theirs.

2. Flexible and sustainable funding –

We have maximized the flexibility within categorical funding and created public-private partnerships that leverage the many resources in our state. We explore and use alternative financing models whenever possible, leveraging shared goals and resources. We bring stability and resources to the communities who are most in need and historically marginalized.

3. Timely and locally relevant data, metrics, and analytics –

We collect near real-time data from multiple sources, integrate these data, and quickly analyze these data for real-time public health decision making. We stratify our data by demographic factors to understand and to measure inequities and address those inequities. We use best practices in data sharing to make our data easily accessible to multiple partners while protecting the privacy of the public.

4. Inclusive partnerships –

We are inclusive, and authentically engage communities through formal and informal channels. We are led by communities and support communities in the way they determine is best for themselves. We view all of our work through an equity lens and create structural and institutional changes within a broader culture of creativity and innovation. We partner with multiple diverse sectors and levels focusing on shared goals and collective results. We are comfortable having difficult conversations about resources, roles, and responsibilities without feeling the need to protect our silos, defend our decisions, or appear in certain ways. We frame problems creatively, allowing new possibilities for solutions and new directions for problem solving.
